Dear Parents, Guardians and Students,

Tomorrow starts Day 1 of remote learning and we are ready! While none of us could have predicted even a few weeks ago that we would launch this dramatic new transition in education, here we are. I could not be prouder of the way the teachers have come together, worked long hours, collaborated, and courageously conquered obstacle after obstacle in preparation for educating your children. With families and loved ones of their own to care for at home, these talented teachers have risen to this challenge in astounding ways.

Below are two paragraphs from my last correspondence, a list of teacher office hours, and a daily schedule. Students should check ALL of their classes each day on Google Classroom (Math, Science, Social Studies, ELA, FLA, Music, Art, French, and Advisory). For the most part, when you sign into each class there will be a lesson, PowerPoint, article with instructions, or other guidance on what the teachers want you to learn and perform. For the major subjects there will be a question posted each day that the students are expected to respond to in order to get credit for the class/day. Along with the daily questions, there will be assignments that you have to complete over the period of time that the teachers inform you of in the lesson .

To the extent possible, we ask that all students and families are proactive and display a willingness to take changes and learn. To the best of their ability, students should complete daily participation activities in all of their classes prior to 3:00pm. We expect that all students participate in check-ins, discussions and the provided office hours with their respective teachers. Attached you will find a copy of a daily schedule for students and times when teachers are made available for office hours.

We also ask that families continue to support students in being successful by establishing routines and habits that support their success in remote learning. Examples of this can be: designating a “workstation,” creating a daily schedule, and notifying teachers and administrators of any questions or concerns. Although we are going remote, we still expect our students to adhere to the school rules and conduct for appropriate behavior.

There will be challenges, there will be hard times, something will go wrong, I'm not worried. We are a strong community and we'll fix what needs to be fixed. We'll continue to progress, and our children will continue to receive a quality education. See you virtually tomorrow!!!
